Spirit of the Morning Press. The Intelligencer noticing the comments of the McClellan's Headquarters Last Night New York Tribune on the late proclamation " of the President it professes to support," says: "As it (the Intelligencer) is not the political friend of the President in the same sense as the Tribune, it would be quite superfluous to become the political enemy of a man whose sorest distress must find expression in the cry, 'Save me from my friends."

The Republican argues that the "question of the legality of Gen. Hunter's order is the whole question of the right of the Commander-in-chief to liberate slaves as a military measure; and says : "We greatly fear that a practical resolution of that question in the negative, is found in the President's proclamation of Monday " The Republican hints that Congress should legislate on the subject.

FINANCIAL .- New York papers of yesterday say:-The vague dispatches received yesterday in reference to the action with Fort Darling, or James river, and the rumors in regard to intervention by France, produced a heavy stock market this morning, with a decline on shares of about & per cent. We have from D. Van Nestrand, pub lisher, New York, through Hudson Taylor, 334 Pennsylvania avenue, a work entitled "The C. S. A. and the Battle of Bull Run," by J. S. Barnard, Major of Engineers, U.S. A. The work was commenced as a letter to an English friend, for the double purpose of vindicating the battle of Bull Run, and to reach the public ear of England. It is an interesting addition to the historical records of that long-to-be-remembered

ELECTED .- Col. Isham G. Haynie, just elected by eighty-two plurality to succeed Gen. Logan in Congress, from Illinois, is a staunch Union Democratia man who goes for prosecuting the war with due energy, to the end of conquering the restoration of the Union. His two competitors, S. S. ALEXANDRIA ITEMS .- From the Gazette of May

Some few cases of small-pox have lately oc-curred in this place. The U.S. authorities have erected a small hospital for small-pox patients, at the north end of the town

The U. S. authorities have purchased two acres of ground, adjoining the burial grounds near thisplace, as a place of interment for such soldiers as may die in the service of the government in the town and neighborhood. Col. Wm. H. Payne, of Fauquier, heretofore reported as being killed at the battle at Williamsburg, at the last accounts was not dead. He was however, severely wounded in the cheek and mouth. It was Richard Payse, of lower Fauquier, not Richards Payne, ir., who was killed in the same battle. The number of "conwabands" from the neighboring counties in Virginia, increase daily in this place. They already occupy several houses.

ELEVEN MILES FROM RICHMOND. The Railroad and Telegraph-Rebels Gathering Around their Capital-Magruder's Order of Retreat-The Army Within tone Day's March of Richmond - All Goes

[Correspondence Philadelphia anquirer.] CHICKAHOMINY RIVER, Sunday Evening, May 18.—Here we are, within about eleven miles of Richmond. Before us an a few hundred yards to our left are the Retai plekets, sitting quietly by the fence looking for Vankees. We came down the railroad, and find it in good order, with but two exceptions—small bridges (about twenty faet) having been burned. The one near the seventgen mile post was burning as we came up, having been fired last night.

Only twenty-five feet of the bridge over the Chickshominy has been burned. The last train passed over it on Friday morning, and in the evening the bridge was fired by some infantry who were picketing. The bridge was about thirty feet high upon this side where it leaves a high bluff, but on the other side ia a long low marsh or bog, perhaps a quarter of a mile wide.

The tressel-work consumed can soon be replaced.

Bottom bridge has not yet been fired, nor has the bridge upon the old stage road to the right of the railroad some three miles; both remain, as the enemy have not all crossed.

There are but two stations of any account between the Parrunkey river and here; the first, Funstells, is four tolles from White House Point and has a fine water tank in good condition, a neat station house and warehouse; a store besides the road has been vacated and all the goods reear the seventeen mile post a bridge wenty-five feet wide was fired last night wood close by, in the rear, and who fired their camp and left this morning. The dry leaves and rails of which it was constructed set the woods on fire and it has burned all day. At Fair Oaks is a fine saw mill, with a hundred thousand feet of good oak car and bridge timber cut, and most of it piled and partly seasoned. The news have been taken out of mill, and a good part of the machinery removed, it will soon be 21 running order.

The meeting of the roads near Bottom's Bridge is called Baltimore Cross Roads. It was here the Rebels fired upon Col. Gregg's Eighth Pennsylvania Cavalry yesterday, with seven different batteries. We lost no one killed or wounded. General Magruder passed over the road running across the railroad at Despatch station, on Friday and Saturday. He had near 50 pieces of artillery. and some 20,000 infantry and cavalry. He intended to enter Richmond by the New Bridge, on the old stage road, five miles above here. His retreat has been conducted in a fine and masterly manner; he keeps up the stragglers and baggage none were found; the camp fires, where his rear guard were last night, and the tracks of his vi-dettes, are all we can find. A stray piece of pap picked up, was found to be a general order, read-" In the Field, Right Wing Corps d' Army, near

Baltimore Cross Roads, May 11, 1862. §
"Commanders of Divisions, Brigades, Regiments and Companies, are required to impress it strictly upon their commands not to ever march their men without their knapsacks and haversacks; every man must consider himself an independent; and no man must ever stop to rest, loiter on the road, or to get his baggage carelessly left, nor is it to be at any time considered at all certain that the same position will be occupled by the same troops two successive days, or that the same road will again be traversed. "By order of General MAGNA, A.A. G.

"Official.—S. S. McIntosh, A. D. C.
"Official.—Wm. W. Page, A. A. G."
This was directed upon the back to the Litterant Colonel Commanding Twenty-first Mis-

The country along the Chickahominy is similar to that along Bull Run. It will not do for us to go plunging heedlessly—we must feel our way. Better slow and sure, than a rush and a retreat. We can drive them from here whenever it is ordered, but we must have up some artillery to shell them out of their ravines—to drive them from the cover of the pines and the oaks. Beyond this marsh and the hilly gorges is an open and clear country, where we can give them a fair fight if they want it. The railroad could be put in operation in one day, for thirteen miles, if we had rolling stock here. Where is Col. T. A. Scott, or his assistants? The iron is a heavy new rail, the chairs wrought fron, the ties large and laid in a bed of gravel, and the track is in excellent order, and it for heavy trains at rapid speed.

Robert Marshall, residing four miles from Wheeling, Va., was arrested on Saturday last on the charge of uttering seditions language and denouncing the government. He was released on $500 bail, but on his return to his farm, con-ducted himself in such a violent manner, that he was re-arrested and confined in the Atheneum. Wheeling Intelligencer, May 19.

The advance, under Gen. Stoneman, reached New Bridge vesterday, within eight miles of Richmond. They found no enemy in force or this side of the Chickahominy, which at that point dwindles down to a small creek.

The country in that locality is in a good state of cultivation, with no more swamp than is to be found on ordinary bottom land.

Six pieces of artillery were found posted upon the opposite bank; but his purpose not being to bring on an engagement, he retired one mile from the bridge, and encamped.

WRECK OF THE ORIENTAL.

Brigadier General Saxton, and the rest of the Passengers and the Crew, Saved.

A Portion of the Cargo Lost.

The War Department this forenoon received the following dispatch:

FORTRESS MONROR, May 21 .- The Oriental, in which Gen. Saxton [the newly appointed Military Governor of South Carolina .- ED. STAR] sailed, was wrecked on Friday night, May 16th, on Body's Island, thirty-three miles north of Cape Hatteras. The passengers and crew were saved, and a portion of the cargo was lost. The remainder will be saved on the beach.

W. J. A. Fuiler, esq., of New York, went sixty-five miles, in a storm, in a canoe across the Sound to Fort Hatteras for assistance, which, by his energy, was obtained.

Lieut. Ellis, acting assistant quartermaster, came with the steamer George Peabody. Col. Hawkins, commander of Roanoke Island, came next day, and took possession of the Government property, and placed a guard over it.

Lieut. Ellis and Col. Hawkins displayed the most commendable zeal and judgment in preserving the Government property and generally promoting the comfort of the ship's wrecked passengers. Both deserve the highest praise. Brig. Gen. Saxton arrived here this morning. Most of the passengers will be in New York on Friday in the U.S. steamer Geo. Peabody.

LATEST FROM GENERAL HALLECK'S ARMY

THE CONFLICT APPROACHING

BEFORE CORINTH, May 20 - There has been eskirmishing along the whole line to-day, the result of our feeling the enemy's strength and seeking more advantageous positions. Our losses were small.

The army is advancing slowly.

The story about several rebel regiments at tempting to mutiny and the sending of United States forces to their assistance, is false. It has been raining all day, and there is a prospect of a rainy night. The Nashville Union chronicles the constant arrival of Tennesseeans in that city, sick of the Southern Confederacy, and says a thorough Union man must be chosen for the approaching circuit election.

FROM FREMONT'S COMMAND. The Repulse at McDowell.

The Wheeling Intelligencer, May 19th, says: We conversed last evening with Lieut. Henry H. Ficket, of Mansfield, Ohio, who is direct from Fremont's command, and who witnessed the battle at McDowell on the 8th, between Milroy's and Schenck's forces and the enemy under Jack.

Our forces consisted of nine regiments in all. six under Milroy and three under Schenck, numbering not more than seven thousand men. Those under Milroy were 75th, 73d, 32d and 25th Ohio, and 2d and 3d Virginia. Those under Schenck were the 82d and 55th Ohio and 5th Virginia. It appears that Milroy's force had advanced from Monterey in the direction of Staunton as far as McDowell, two regiments ten miles beyond and one sixteen. Just before noon on the 8th the pickets of this advanced regiment were driven in, and it fell back to the other two. They all fell back in good order to within a mile and a quarter of McDowell, where they made a stand. Skirmishing continued until a quarter to six in the evening, when the main fight began. The enemy were posted along the top of a mountain which terminated abruptly on our left. Milroy's forces were disposed in front of the mountain some distance along, with the batteries on elevated ground in the rear. There were five of these-Capt. Hymen's, Capt. De Beck's, Capt. Ewing's. Capt. Johnson's, and another not remembered by our informant. Capt. Hymen's battery in par-ticular did brilliant execution, being about upon a level with the enemy. His shells all burst at the right time and in the right place, each one clearing a space of about thirty feet in the ranks

About 7 o'clock in the evening Gen. Schenck's brigade came up, having left Franklin at half-past ten in the morning. The fight raged furi-ously, and lasted till 9 o'clock at night. Shortly ark, the 32d and 82d Ohio made a brilliant bayonet charge up the mountain in the face of the enemy's fire, and drove them from their position, but much to their surprise found a heavy force in reserve on the other side of the mountain. They fell back of course. Meanwhile, the enemy had come around the bluff termination of the mountain, and flanked our force. The 25th Ohio was posted on the extreme left, and the weight of this flank movement fell upon them. They fought gallantly and were considerably cut up. Their ammuntion gave out, and they stood upon the field and waited like heroes till a fresh supply was brought them. Upon the discovery that the enemy were greatly superior in numbers, our force fell back in good order about 9 o'clock, having given the rebels at least a Roland for their Oliver. Our loss amounted to 37 killed and 160 wounded. That of the enemy was believed to be much larger, from the fact that our men firing up hill, were more accurate in their aim, and on account of the terrible execution of the shells thrown from our batteries. Deserters who came in after lin, the capital of Pendleton county, and next day this side. The enemy 14,000 strong followed. There were two or three days' skirmishing—our batteries playing on them with shell and keeping them back in spits of their superior force. They came up and occupied our deserted camp at one time; but a well-posted battery soon made-that too hot for them, and they "fell back." In this skirmishing three of our pickets were killed, and we killed six of their men in return.

the fight, declared that their loss was 400 killed, besides the wounded.

While the battle was going on, a couple of companies from the Virginia regiments left at Monterey to guard baggage and provisions, and who had orders to fall back, were attacked with such suddenness that they had to skedaddle on the double quick, and leave everything—even their own baggage, clothing, uniforms, etc., in their trunks. Lieut. Weaver, of the 2d Virginia, left behind a trunk containing valuables to the amount of $150. There was no lighting, as they obeyed the order to fall back as soon as the pickets were driven in; consequently nobody hurt there, but considerable loss of personal effects.

After the light, our forces fell back to Frankbesides the wounded.

Heavy reinforcements from Fremont had arrived before our informant left Franklin. Blencker's "Bully Dutchmen" were there, eager for a fight. FROM GEN. Cox's ARMY .- We learn from a gentleman who arrived yesterday from Sen. Cox's headquarters, Raleigh, that Col. Scammon, who had advanced to Princeton, Mercer county, had fallen back from that village to a stronger position, before vastly superior number of rebels. The roads from Gauley to Raleigh, and from Raleigh to Princeton are in a miserable condition. Forage is exceedingly scarce, and it is with the greatest difficulty that food is found for either man or beast .- Wheeling Intelligencer, May 19.
